

Parkinson's disease is a progressive neurodegenerative disorder characterized by motor symptoms like bradykinesia, rigidity, and resting tremor. This is primarily caused by the loss of dopaminergic neurons in the substantia nigra. Levodopa/carbidopa remains the gold standard for symptomatic treatment.