

A case of atopic dermatitis (eczema) in an adult patient with severe pruritus and lichenification. Management includes advising the use of thick emollients, avoiding known triggers, and prescribing a short course of a potent topical steroid like clobetasol propionate for flares.